DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claim 2 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter, which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention.

Regarding Claim 2, the claim recites the limitation "wherein the active address interval is substantially equivalent to being driven at 85 Hz when a refresh rate is 60 Hz". However there is no support for such a limitation in the detailed specification and no explanation of how the device would operate under such a limitation. The well known definition of frequency in the art is how many times a full period of a signal is repeated during a fixed time period, usually one second. And according to the detailed specification the refresh rate is 60 Hz which is controlled by the V_sync which has a full period of 16.7ms (Fig. 6), and the active address interval is driven at 60 Hz as well which is controlled by the CPV which has a full period of 16.7ms (11.2ms + 5.5 ms) the same as the V_sync (Fig. 6). Further according to the detailed specification the refresh rate as well as the active address interval must be synced with one another in order for the display to be operable.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 1 and 3-10 are allowed.

Regarding independent Claim 1, prior art (Nose, Fig. 13) teaches all limitations of the claim except a current boosting section for increasing current amount supplied to the gate bus lines during the vertical blanking period interval in response to a pulse width modulation signal. It is noted that prior art does show a current boosting section responsive to a pulse width modulation signal. However said current boosting section is not used to supply gate bus lines and is not operational during a vertical blanking period as claimed.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed May 20th 2009, have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

First the examiner would like to bring to the attention of the applicant, that in the amendment, filed on May 20th, 2009 Claim 2 was reverted back to a previous state, and no amendments were made to it that were not previously presented to the examiner. However the arguments section states that claim 2 is both cancelled and amended to further clarify the claim language. Since the examiner is not sure exactly which set of arguments to follow the examiner used the copy of the claims filed with the amendment as the basis for above the rejection. Therefore since claim 2 has not been cancelled as shown in the filed claims and has not been amended as stated by the arguments the rejection is maintained.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
